The Port-Hole
of
Shore High School, Euclid, Ohio

Foreword

When all of you have wandered to four corners of the land,
And all of you have done your share
whether small or grand,
When all of you have tasted of the cup of happiness,
And all of you have tried to reach
ideals of success,
If, then, one day just some of you will leaf this book and dream
Of scenes and persons pictured here in manner of Indian theme,
That day shall be the staff's reward for making out of this
A "Happy-Hunting Ground" where dwell
These memories of bliss.

DEDICATION

We, the Class of '27, dedicate this book to

The Shore of Lake Erie

My face toward sea, my back to cliff, I gaze
With vision unimpeded, free, and wide,
Along the shore. Then am I occupied
With lore and legend of far-off Indian days.

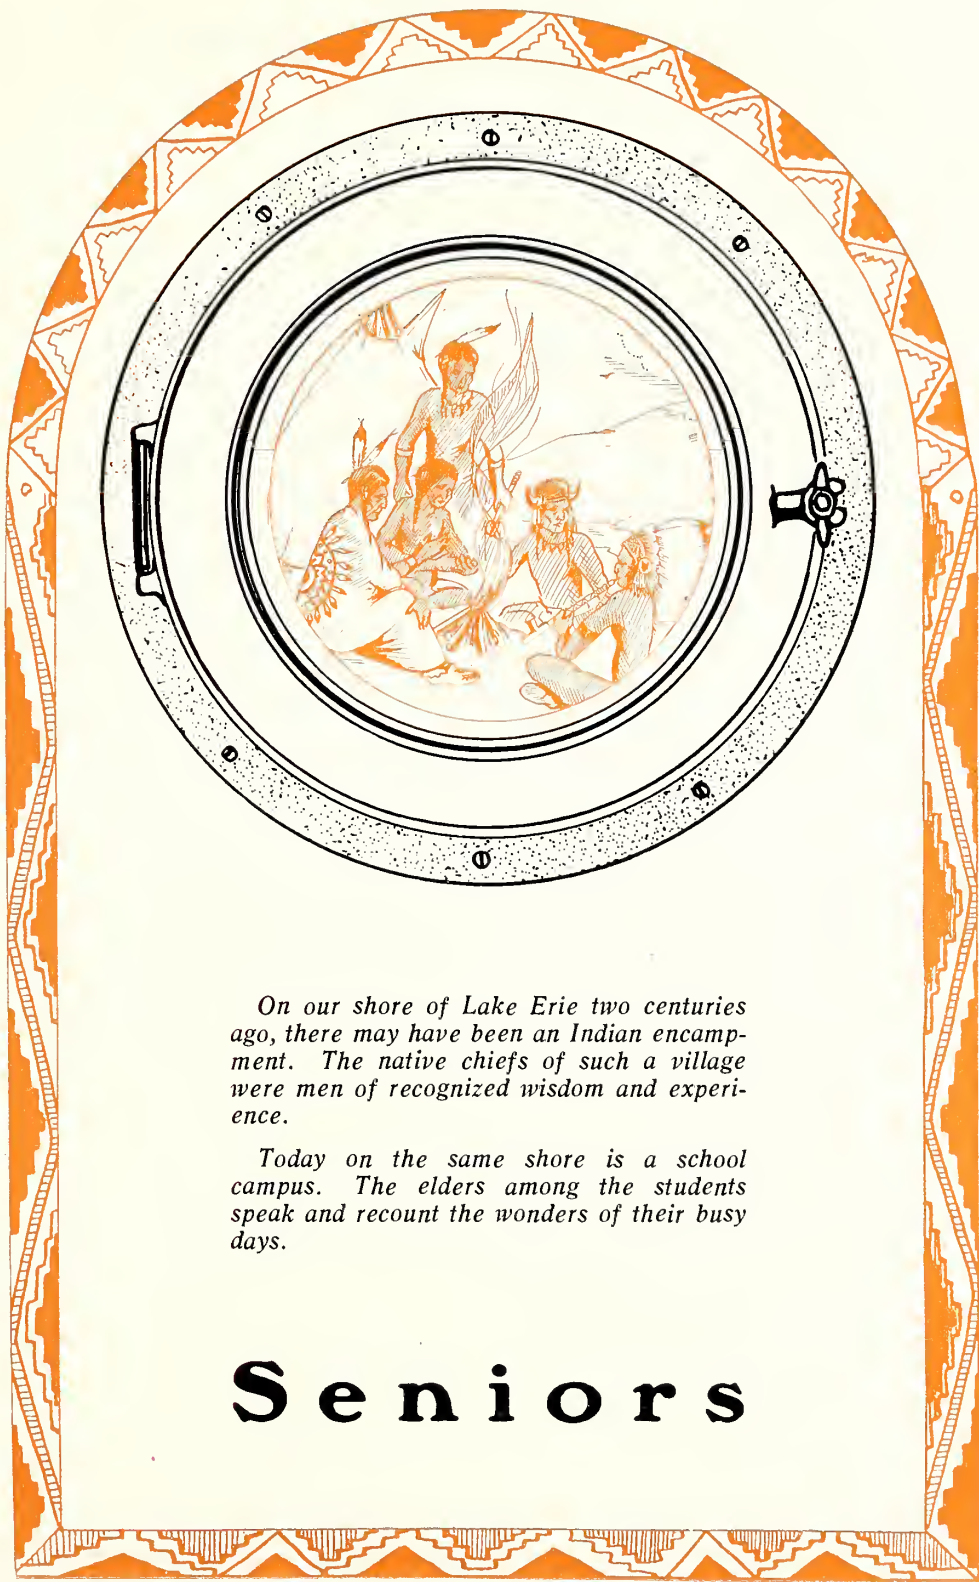

Did once an Indian boy delight to raise
The sand in playful scoops, or thrust aside
His moccasins, or creep unseen inside
The tent to steal the cake of Indian maize?

Came here an Indian youth in summer haze
To dream of shores remote and yet untried?
Did Indian brave to laughing maid confide
His wonder at the sun-god's curious ways?

Shrill voices break my dream of far-off years;
So Indian of legend swiftly disappears.

—C. E. S.

On our shore of Lake Erie two centuries ago, there may have been an Indian encampment. The native chiefs of such a village were men of recognized wisdom and experience.

Today on the same shore is a school campus. The elders among the students speak and recount the wonders of their busy days.

Last Will of the Class of 1927

We, the Senior Class of 1927, being of sound mind and memory, in full possession of our faculties, and a few other things which it is safest not to mention, do make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament, to-wit:

First—All unnecessary expenses, such as class dues, shall be fully paid.

Second—We nominate and appoint Calvin Coolidge to be the executor of this, our last will, and render all former wills null and void.

Third—We give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of our possessions, real, personal, and imaginative, to our successors, to have and to hold, by them, and their heirs and assigns forever.

We leave to——

The young braves, the children, and the papooses—these were the stirring beings of the Indian village on the shore of a great lake.

To-day they are superseded by the vigorous students of a modern school.

 We will all go home for rest
 From school;
 We will leave our books and rules
 To go swimming in lakes and pools

 Is as far away as college
 From school;
 Then when summer's almost o'er
 We'll come back to learn some more
 At school;

Someone ask, "Anything to do today?" Yes, posters to be printed and distributed; handbills to be counted and distributed; tickets to be stamped and sold;—always something to do. Why do you ask such a question?

Coming into room 105 during the sixth period, you will find some such conversation taking place. This room is office, printshop, distribution center, and general headquarters of Shore's Advertising Committee.

Whenever the "world at large" needs to be told anything about the activities of Shore High, the Committee gets busy and broadcasts the ADV'T.

The committee is very dependable and efficient, and should be commended for its spirit of service, attendance at picture shows and basketball games. Wherever help is needed, the committee is ever ready to serve. Three of its members graduate; their places must be filled next year. If the work appeals to you, get your applications in early next September.

SHORE'S WEEKLY NEWS

Begun four years ago as a class project by Miss Swartz, this four-page paper has developed into the official organ of school news at Shore. It is published every Tuesday. A proof of its increasing value is the large subscription list this year. There are 204 regular subscribers.

The editing of the paper is entirely within the school, the typing, mimeographing, and distributing being done by a permanent staff. Each quarter there has been, however, a different editor-in-chief. Associate editors have been appointed, too, for short periods of time. This rotation of the literary managers, gives many a chance to find out how to get and how to organize newspaper material.

Anna Mirl.....	Goldie Kovacic
Aunt Evatkl.....	Eleanor Hart

Much credit is due Miss Maude Faetkenheuer and Mr. Erwin King, directors and supervisors of this charming performance.

Once the Indian used his skill in spearing the fish in the streams. Worthy the brave who brought back to his camp an abundant catch!

The athletes of modern times use their skill in shooting baskets and in making touchdowns. Worthy the athletes who bring honor to their school!

Football Review

When Shore started the 1926 football season, just six regulars from the 1925 team reported for duty. Altho a large squad should have returned, ineligibilities and withdrawals hit the team so hard that Coach Van Deusen practically had to start all over rebuilding the team.

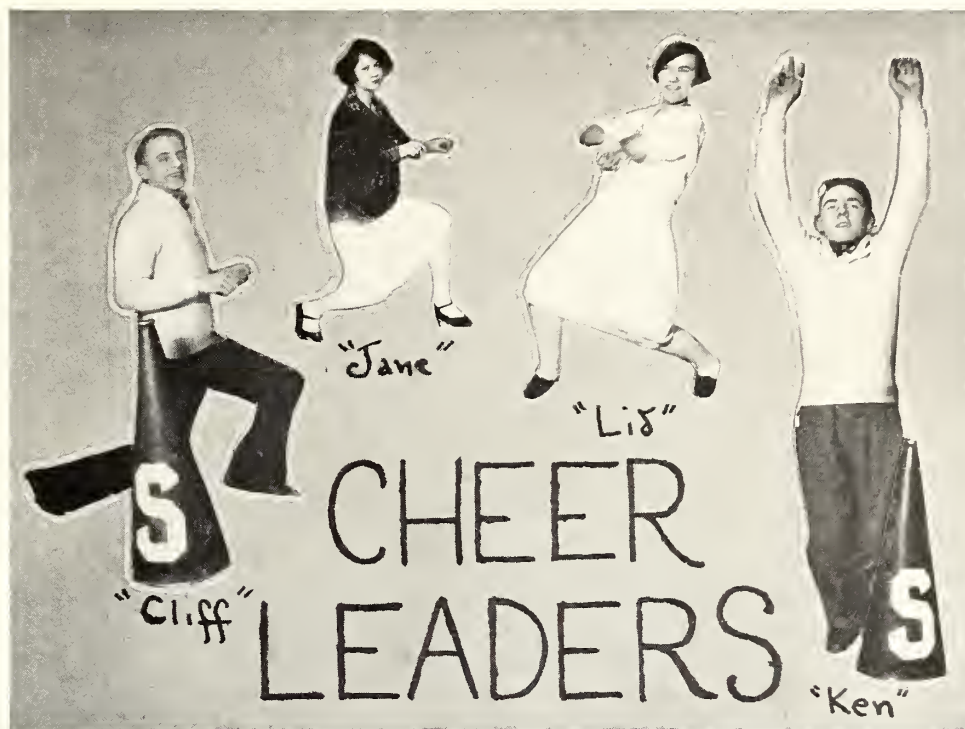

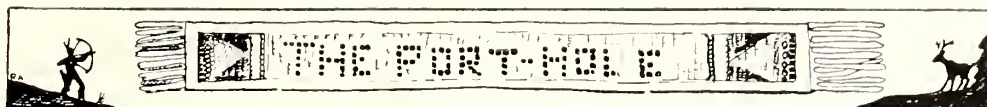

After three weeks of scrimmage the team was ready for the first games of the season.

"Speed" Jackson, veteran, and "Bud" Myers, a new man, held down the end positions; Roxy Montana, Letter-man, and Warren Borgsteadt, a rookie, were assigned the tackle positions; "Tony" Yurglic, and "Nick" Pilla, both veterans of last year's eleven, were the guards; the center berth was held down in the early part of the season by Mackey, a newcomer, and during the latter part of the season by Elmer Kurrle.

The backfield consisted of "Gene" Fryan, quarter; "Stubby" Jennings, and Mike Parenti, at the halves; and "Ed" Osborne, full.

There were other good men who broke into the games, some who earned letters; these were "Fritz" Watkins, "Chuck" Schubert, Ben Test, Bob Yeomans, and Kester Dissette.

The first game was with Shaker, a conference affair. Shaker scored in the first quarter, the result of a "break". They won 8-0. Painesville, 1925 Lake County Champs, was next on the Shore schedule. Our team appeared like midgets when stacked up against their opponents, but gave the big team a severe drubbing. Only nine points were chalked up, however.

The Big Green of Longwood was defeated 3-0 in another conference tilt. Shore ran wild over the West Commerce team, but after penalties for this and that had exacted their toll, it was found that Shore had scored only 13 points.

Shore defeated Mentor, the 1926 Lake County Champs, 20-6 in a practice game. John Marshall, heavily out-weighting Shore, as most teams did, was victorious by a 6-0 verdict. Rocky River, one of the biggest and best teams in Cleveland, "got" Shore at a time when the team was hard hit by injuries, and altho Shore held on line plays, the River passing game could not be stopped. The final count as recorded by our Burroughs, was 69-14.

The big game of the season came around. Euclid had won the championship; but a defeat by us would mean to share it with Rock River. As we were out of it, we wanted Euclid to win the title; but, we did not want a defeat at their hands. After holding them scoreless for nearly three quarters, our team cracked and Euclid, with their two all-conference ball toters, slipped over for two touchdowns.

James Hutchins, Nick Pilla, Ben Test, Robert Jennings, Frederic Watkins, Gene Fryan, Roxy Montana.

Basketball Review

The beginning of our 1927 basketball season had even a darker outlook than did the football season. Of all the regulars and subs of last year's squad, only three men were left as a nucleus around which to build a team. These men were Captain "Stubby" Jennings, "Gene" Fryan, and Nick Pilla.

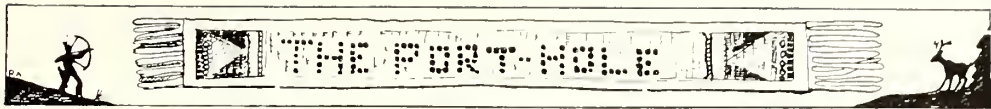

However, a large number of candidates turned out for the squad, and Coach Van Deusen began giving them the fundamentals, teaching them to handle the ball. The squad was soon cut down, and enough men left for a first and second team. Mr. Case was given charge of the second stringers. The varsity consisted of "Stub" Jennings, and "Fritz" Watkins, forwards; Ben Test, center; "Gene" Fryan, and Nick Pilla, guards. Jimmie Hutchins, and Roxy Montana were the other two members.

Like our football eleven, this team was the smallest and lightest in the city, but surprised the followers when the games came around. What our team lacked in size, they made up in team-work, and in the handling of the ball. Big teams came, saw, and were conquered.

Shore defeated teams such as Beachland (Alumni), John Marshall, West Commerce, Wickliffe, and in the practice games, Mentor, Shaw, Glenville, Wickliffe, and Kirtland; close decisions were dropped to Painesville, and East. Shore lost conference games to Shaker, Longwood, and Rocky River. The two latter games were one-point defeats, and would have meant the championship for Shore, had the decisions been reversed.

In the annual tournament, Shore drew Brush High in the first round, and won 11-9. Rocky River was drawn for the second round, and with the advantage of playing on their own strange floor, and with a fresh team, Rocky River defeated our cagers, 15-4.

Warren Borgsteadt was manager of the team.

Zora Garrapic, Lucy Mathews, Priscilla Easterling, Nan Colquhoun, Alma Harwood (Captain), Alice Smith, Margaret Clark, Dorothy Getler, Marian Ahlman.

Girls' Basketball

Although the girls' basketball team did not win the majority of their games we can be proud of them for putting up the fights they did when playing teams out of their class.

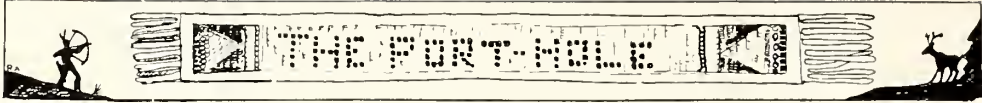

The team worked well together, always playing hard and carrying the real Shore spirit into their games. It just seemed as if the horseshoe was upside down, but the girls fought hard. Some of the teams they played were Shaker Heights, Holy Name, Euclid Central, Rocky River, Wickliffe, Mentor and the Alumni. They won four of the eleven games played and had a total score of 186 points to their opponents 207.

Our captain, Alma Harwood, kept the girls organized besides fulfilling her position as guard. Priscilla Easterling, Margaret Clark, Marian Ahlman, and Lucy Mathews also kept their opposing forwards from getting many baskets. Nan Colquhoun and Alice Smith continued to add points to the score while Zora Garapic and Dorothy Getler fought hard at jumping center. Margaret Klauminzer acted as varsity manager. With the help of Miss Aingworth and Mr. Van Deusen the wheel was kept in motion.

The only remaining players for next year are Marian Ahlman, Dorothy Getler, and Lucy Mathews. There will also be hopeful prospects from the second team.

Ghosts of the Campus

If it hadn't been for Bud, this account would never have been written.

This evening, I asked if I could see Shore's campus. Bud gave up studying for final exams to show me around. It was at his suggestion that we took the path which led to Shoreodor River, and incidentally past the assembly hall.

"Do you hear that awful noise?" I asked of Bud as we drew closer to the building.

He shrugged his shoulders. "Probably a night study-hall," he said.

"A study hall with that racket?"

"Well, it might be a fire. Smell smoke?"

At this new idea, we quickened our pace. Such pounding and shouting, clapping and yelling! So study hall had come to this! This younger generation!

Bud grabbed me by the arm and pulled me through the door. Already the noise had gone to his head, poor chap. As I tried to make my way through the crowd, I was confronted by two nice-looking, elderly ladies. (This is, they would have been nice-looking if they hadn't been eyeing me so viciously.)

One said, "Tickets, please," and the other said, "Say, this is an auction, not a dog fight." As I put the tickets in the box, Bud introduced me to them. They were Miss Moffet and Miss Mortimer, partners in the Euclid Advertising Company. Forgive me for adding that Miss Mortimer tried to start a flirtation with me.

Bud and I wormed our way through the crowd until we stood quite near the platform from where the noise was coming.

"Come on, now: 65-66-make it 70. 70? Going-going-gone at 70."

"The auctioneer is Mr. Pickard, the champion hog caller of the county," Bud shouted to me.

Another one gone to the pigs! With a voice like that, he might have been an opera star, I thought.

Almost immediately, Mr. Pickard auctioned off a beautiful portrait of a motor-man painted in the interurban car days. Bud told me that the slim gentleman going up to get the portrait was Mr. Aitken, the artist who drew hairpin advertisements for the Ladies' Home Journal. At that moment someone unceremoniously stepped on my foot. I groaned. "That," said Bud, pointing to the guilty one, "is Mr. Pilla, an understudy of Wallace Beery." Well, I could at least be thankful that only an understudy had stepped on my foot. What might have happened if Mr. Beery himself had stepped on it?

"Look," Bud whispered. "There are Miss Gill and Miss King, very famous Folly dancers. They are both bidding for the same pair of ballet slippers."

Hm! 'fouly' dancers! Probably a new expression for a vulgar dancer. They didn't look like that type, tho. Mr. Pickard ended the argument by sending them home, telling them that they were getting too old to be good dancers anyway.

"Who is that following them?" I asked and pointed to a short gentleman going out with the ladies.

"Mr. Montana," Bud explained. "He's a camera man. Touching, isn't it?"

As Mr. Montana left, we heard a dreadful racket behind us. "It's Miss Wagner," Bud explained again. I saw a tiny person swimming in salt tears. "But why is she crying?" I asked.

"She wants to go with Miss Gill and Miss King, I guess."

"Here, here," said a distinguished looking man, bustling up. "Come with me Thelma. We'll take the case up in court."

"The gentleman," said Bud as the two hurried away, "is Mr. Armitage, the lawyer."

"Ah," chirped Mr. Pickard. "Here we have a case of love sickness."

Two male voices were heard above the rest, bidding for it.

"How many in a case?" asked Mr. Watkins.

"Two make a case," said the auctioneer, "but you're not in on this because you already have one case. This case goes to Mr. Jennings."

I had been led to understand from Bud that Mr. Watkins and Mr. Jennings were living lives of seclusion at Euclid Beach, but now I wonder—

Bud was in deep conversation with a pleasant looking gentleman at his right. I caught Bud's eye and he introduced us. Mr. Yurglic yurgled pleasantly. "Mr. Yurglic is taking gargling lessons at Western Reserve University," murmured Bud. "He wants to be a druggist when he gets out."

"Ah," said Mr. Pickard. "Here is some Scotch—"

The two sturdy policemen, Mr. Fryan and Mr. Parenti, had all they could do to check the rush at that moment.

"Plaid," finished Mr. Pickard.

Miss Colquhoun bought the plaid. At the present time she is playing the bagpipes at Ye Auld Scotch Dance Hall.

A beautiful set of false teeth went to Mr. Gill, the dentist, who is famous for the motto, "I drill, I fill, and I kill."

A touching little ballad, entitled Cry Baby, went to Miss Smith who is playing the piano at the Euclid Barber shop to soothe the crying infants.

"Ah, Richman's clothes for the society man," continued Mr. Pickard, holding up a dress suit, "$22.50? Gone at $22.50."

I was told that the gentleman to whom the bid went was Mr. Grimm, the popular Gigolo at Euclid Village Park dance hall. In his spare moments, he practiced the one-step at Boss's Restaurant.

"Ha, a dumbbell," said Mr. Pickard gleefully.

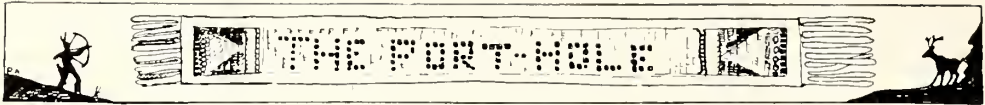

Mr. Grimm had to be taken out by force. Mr. Pickard was only displaying a gymnastic instrument, tho, and not calling Mr. Grimm names.

The former Miss Easterling went up to get the dumbbell.

"She is the famous trapeze performer in the Bungle Circus," explained Bud. "She has married the tatooed man."

I presume she took the dumbbell home as a constant reminder of what she had married.

Dr. Klauminzer bid for a box of second-hand pills but was outbid by Miss Brooks, the veterinary. Miss Feldman received a round-trip ticket to Ashtabula and Miss Stockall, an employee at the Euclid Stock Yard, bid for a rabbit foot which would give her good luck.

When Mr. Pickard auctioned off a derby hat to Miss Harwood who ran a Haberdashery in Euclid, Mr. Newcomb got extremely rough and the policemen had to take him out immediately. Afterward, the rumor was that Mr. Newcomb was merely training for a wrestling match in which he and Mr. Kurrle were to engage in the near future.

Next a dictionary of Languages went to Miss Kovacic who called the trains in seven languages at the Union Depot.

"Last but not least," sang out Mr. Pickard, "we have a real Ford. The motor comes with it. It has the get-there-and-back quality. It's now out in front. 50? Make it 60. Well, I 'spose it goes at 50, then, to Mr. Anderson."

The red-haired gentleman, Mr. Anderson, was an active advertiser for the Red Top Taxicab Company. Evidently he collected antiques on the side.

Mr. Test, a second-hand car dealer, rubbed his hands in delight as he hurried out with Mr. Anderson. The hall emptied rapidly, for all wished to see Mr. Anderson's new possession. What they didn't know didn't hurt them, I thought to myself.

Bud and I took our time getting out of the building and that is how I got to see Miss Clark, who was a famous tragedian until she lost her voice, and Miss Garapic, who was a well known animal trainer until she lost hers. They were busily engaged in turning off the lights and locking the doors.

"Well," Bud said, as we walked back to the dormitory, "how'd you enjoy the evening?"

"Fine, Bud, fine," I said. "I have seen the Rogues' Portraits at the Gallery, but I never expected to see the Rogues in person."

.When Bananas Are Ripe

Eddie Quidort told us plainly one day,

"When bananas are ripe, why, they're ripe."

Now this was quite baffling, for we had not thought
That bananas are ripe when they're ripe.

You ask where he said this and what was the cause?

It was one of our lively debates

On banana plantations in far away lands
Protected by the United States.

Ed began many times, but all he could say

Was "Bananas are ripe, bananas are ripe!"

To screams of laughter, he finally cried,
"Bananas are ripe when they're ripe."

Now there are numerous dishes, all pleasing to taste,

There are oysters and lobsters and snipe,

But speak of bananas to Ed and you'll learn
That Eddie prefers them when ripe.
